TO PRINTERS.

Allow us to submit to your notice this Specimen of our new Pica; being one of a Series of Founts from English to Pearl, cut upon a principle entirely new. In calling the attention of the Trade to these Founts, we trust we shall not be deemed presumptuous when we assert, that none have hitherto appeared which excel them in point of durability; and few, if any, to equal them in that most essential Quality. As to their appearance in print, we must appeal to the judgment of our Customers; but may be allowed to observe, that in this particular, we have succeeded to our own entire satisfaction, and to that of every Printer who has tried them. We would therefore respectfully solicit a minute inspection of the Specimens, and an impartial comparison with those of our Contemporaries.

We are, Gentlemen,

Your most obedient Servants,

BLAKE, GARNETT, & Co.

O how canst thou renounce the boundless store
Of charms which Nature to her votary yields!
The warbling woodland, the resounding shore,
The pomp of groves, and garniture of fields;
All that the genial ray of morning gilds,
And all that echoes to the song of even,
All that the mountain's sheltering bosom shields,
And all the dread magnificence of Heaven,
O how canst thou renounce, and hope to be forgiven?

From the English, French, Italian, Spanish, Portuguese, and other languages, I have collected a great number of words, which I have arranged in alphabetical order, and which I have printed in this book, for the use of those who are desirous of learning the English language, and who wish to be enabled to converse with the natives of those countries. I have also added a great number of words, which are not to be found in any other dictionary, and which are of great use to the traveller.
